Local architect rejoins TEG as part of leadership team

Jeffersonville, IN – TEG Architects, an architectural, planning and interior design firm, is pleased to announce Joel L. Wallace, AIA has returned to the firm as a Principal. Joel had previously been an active member of the TEG team while working on a variety of health care, commercial, municipal, educational and multi-use facilities. He is a very talented architect with excellent design skills and had helped shape the firm for many years.

Excelling in the development of projects, Joel's drive and attention to detail have allowed him to bring complex, fast track projects to fruition while remaining on schedule and on budget. His knowledge of software and overall design is diverse – allowing him to develop presentation imagery, graphic annotation, conceptual design visualizations and detailed construction documentation. Joel also represents TEG within our local municipality, working with city officials and boards to bring projects to life in our own back yard.

“It is great to have Joel back at TEG to share his expertise with our project teams and clients,” said Wayne Estopinal, president of TEG Architects. “His knowledge of our projects and process, as well as his commitment to quality services is a win-win for our clients and our team.”

Joel understands the importance of communication and is continually engaged with our clients, consultants and design teams. His passion for maintaining the quality and reputation of our product is apparent throughout all layers of his work and career. The firm looks forward to Joel's strong leadership and commitment to the firm's approach to service, quality and creativity.
